Description

Departure time this day will be at 5:20 in the morning, then, by our driver and with your private guide, you will be driven for around 40 minutes in the way to Paz de las Aves location in which you will have the once-in-a life-time opportunity to sight the famed Cock of the Rock dancing and chirping for around one hour. Afterward, you will enjoy your breakfast outdoor: natural fruit, cupcakes, bananas, bread, fresh cheese, boiled eggs, coffee and milk will give you energy enough to relish this fancy place; in addition, Angel Paz and his family will let you taste a traditional breakfast on the base of mashed and fried green plantain call "bolón de verde" complemented with the best ecuadorian coffee after the program. Following the itinerary in this location, you will have chance to see and enjoy five different types of antpittas which are usually in the area.

Located 1,400 meters (4,590 ft), Paz de las Aves is a private reserve between Nanegalito and Mindo at kilometer 65-66. It has 30 hectares of primary and secondary forest. Rodrigo and Angel Paz are two brothers who have patiently trained several gralarias, who are normally very shy, to leave the tangled forest when they hear their names and then reward them with the portion of worms. The most daring is the Giant Antlaria (Giant Antpitta) called "María" who follows them everywhere in search of the worms, then Angel Paz calls "Willi" Gralaria Pechiamarillenta (Yellow-breasted Antpita) to eat. They also have training for Grausta Moustached (Moustached Antpitta) and Gralaria Pechiocracea (ocher-breasted antpitta). On rare occasions the Corcovado Dorsiosuro (dark-Backed Wood Quail) appears. The highlight bird to be sighted in this location is the Cock of the Rock, but you also have the opportunity to enjoy the company of the following birds: Giant Antpitta, Moustached Antpitta, Yellow-breasted Antpitta, Chestnut-crowned Antpitta, Ochre-breasted Antpitta.

After the visit detailed above has finished, you will be driven to the Alambi Reserve to enjoy their feeders area. The perfect climate, intact primary forest, attractive gardens by the river and handy location spanning the main highway, made it perfect and will all of their visitors have a memorable experience. You will have lunch in a local and tasty restaurant in the area.

After the visit described before, you will continue birding in the Old Road To Mindo in Upper area of Tandayapa Valley which is a beautiful slice of the Ecuadorian amazon rain forest. It is most well-known for the exceptional birding opportunities. But birds aren't the only reason to visit Tandayapa, trees literally drip with their own micro-habitats, hosting epiphytes like orchids and bromeliads. Air plants are fascinating, with their ability to grow on top of other plants, however they are not parasitic.

While there is no single best time of the year to arrive, arriving when the trees are fruiting makes it easier to see different iconic species. There is a huge network of trails throughout the Tandayapa Valley and so far explorers have discovered 330 species of bird. Scores of toucans, wrens and warblers are seen each day. Hummingbird feeders have been used to entice 31 different species to the area. Sometimes there can be as many as twenty species seen in a single day. There is certainly enough here to keep and nature lover enticed for days.
